*Charlotte,
I hope you find this interesting. I have spoken to Williams & Miller about it and we have agreed to postpone the board meeting - probably until this spring.

You may find the enclosed report to our directors of some interest. For those of you who know something of the Institute's history, you will see that we have tried increasingly to be of real public service, while at the same time providing an increased variety of opportunities, practical and otherwise, for our various constituencies of students, et al. In a very large school I think we are providing a real focal point for foreign students, the number of which has increased, and American J.D. and graduate students interested in international affairs, especially practical and economic ones. I hope also that we will have eventually created something, added something to the knowledge in our field, and influenced the course of events.
