Visit of George Reynolds.

April 23, 1945

Mr. George Reynolds, assistant to Secretary Wallace, is coming to see about the intended conference between Mr. Wallace and the Attorney General on the following points:

- a. What can be done to meet discrimination against American patents and trademarks arising out of compulsory licensing and similar statutes of other countries. (Compare the two Swedish cases, Sperry and Dupont).
- b. How can the Secretary of Commerce, when finally authorized to disseminate German technology make sure that the use of this technology is not hindered by existing patents, especially by patents taken out or developed in cooperation with German firms?

If you need any material before or during the conference please call on me.
